The development of an increasingly modern era has caused business growth in Indonesia, especially in the city of Bandung, to grow very rapidly. One example of its development is in the culinary field. Culinary is one of the most popular businesses, especially the coffee shop business. Various variations of new foods and drinks can be found around us. To survive in the midst of this business competition, this matter is also felt by Candu Coffee Bar, which must have a good strategy in order to compete with other competitors. One of the strategies that must be considered is the service marketing mix strategy including People, Physical Evidence and process. From the research conducted, it aims to find out, describe and analyze People, Physical Evidence, Process and Purchasing Decisions at Candu Coffee Bar. The methods used in this study are descriptive and verification analysis methods (validity test, reliability test, classical assumption test, MSI, multiple linear regression test, correlation coefficient, coefficient of determination, f test and t test. So from that it can be concluded that the People variable partially has a positive and significant effect on purchasing decisions, the physical evidence variable partially has a positive and significant effect on purchasing decisions, and the process partially has a positive and significant effect on purchasing decisions. Based on the results that have been tested simultaneously, the people, physical evidence and process variables simultaneously have a positive and simultaneous effect on purchasing decisions, which means that in this study H_0 is rejected and H_a is accepted.
